Head/Spinal Injury Rule

The Groveport Parks & Recreation Department has adopted a new rule into all of our youth athletic programs. All parents/legal guardians of children participating in our youth athletic programs are required to sign documentation acknowledging receipt and understanding of management of head injury (concussion) and back/spinal injury.

If a coach suspects that a player has sustained a head or back (spine) injury, the player needs to be removed from the game or practice immediately. The coach should make the parent aware of the injury and make them aware that the child may not return to the playing field/surface for either a game or practice until the player is symptom-free and has been cleared to play by a physician.

The below information regarding concussions has been adapted from the CDC, the 3rd International Conference on Concussion in Sport & Nationwide Children’s Hospital

A concussion is a brain injury and all brain injuries are serious. They are caused by a bump, blow or jolt to the head, or by a blow to another part of the body with the force transmitted to the head. They can range from mild to severe and can disrupt the way the brain normally works. Even though most concussions are mild, all concussions are potentially serious and may result in complications including prolonged brain damage & death if not recognized and managed properly. In other words, even a “ding” or bump on the head can be serious. You can’t see a concussion and most concussions occur without loss of consciousness.

Signs & symptoms of a concussion may include one or all of the following: headache, dizziness, nausea/vomiting, blurred or double vision, unsteadiness/off balance, loss of consciousness, ringing in the ears, memory loss, changes in mental status (memory, judgment, cognitive function). Signs and symptoms of concussion may show up right after the injury or can take hours or days to fully appear. If your child reports any symptoms of concussion, or if you notice the symptoms or signs of concussion yourself, seek medical attention right away. What can happen if my child keeps on playing with a concussion or returns too soon?

If you think your child has suffered a concussion... Athletes with the signs & symptoms of concussion should be removed from play immediately. Continuing to play with the signs & symptoms of a concussion leaves the young athlete especially vulnerable to greater injury. There is an increased risk of significant damage from a concussion for a period of time after that concussion occurs, particularly if the athlete suffers another concussion before completely recovering from the first one. This can lead to prolonged recover, or even to severe brain swelling (second impact syndrome) with devastating and even fatal consequences. It is well known that adolescent or teenage athletes will often under report symptoms of injuries. And concussions are no different. As a result, education of administrators, coaches and students is the key for student-athlete safety.

Parents should also inform their child’s coach if you think that your child may have a concussion. Remember, it’s better to miss one game than miss the whole season. When in doubt, the athlete sits out. For current information on concussions, visit www.cdc.gov/ConcussionInYouthSports

The below information regarding back/spinal injuries has been provided by Nationwide Children’s Hospital

Neck and spine injuries are common in high contact sports, like football, soccer or lacrosse. Possible causes include fracture, herniated disk and/or nerve pathology. Signs & symptoms of neck/back injury include, but are not limited to point tenderness and/or pain over any bony prominence in the back of the neck; numbness/tingling in arms, legs or down the spine; inability to feel or move face or limbs; muscle spasm; deformity.

If you think that a child has suffered a neck or spine injury... Do NOT move the child. Stabilize the head & neck in the position that it is in and do NOT let the child move. If any of the above symptoms persist, call 9-1-1 and have the child transported immediately to the hospital. Serious neck injury should be suspected for ALL UNCONSCIOUS athletes until proven otherwise.

I have read and agree to adhere to the Parent’s Code of Conduct, Spectator’s Code of Conduct, Player’s Code of Conduct, Coaches Code of Conduct (if applicable) and the Head/Spinal Injury Rule. I realize that I (or my child) may be indefinitely suspended from the youth sports program for unsportsmanlike behavior. Refusal to sign this document will prevent our staff from processing your child’s registration.
